The Chicago Journal of International Law (CJIL) (ISSN 1529-0816) is published twice each year, in the spring and the fall, by the students of the University of Chicago Law School. The views expressed herein are those of the authors and do not necessarily reflect those of the CJIL staff or the University of Chicago.

Subscriptions: Subscriptions are US $32.00 per year for domestic addresses and US $38.00 per year for foreign addresses. All subscriptions are automatically renewed absent timely notice of cancellation. A subscription form is available at the back of this issue or at <http://home.uchicago.edu/orgs/cjil>.

Submissions: CJIL invites the submission of articles, essays, perspectives, and book notes related to international law and policy. Manuscripts may be submitted via email at cjil@orgs.uchicago.edu; diskettes and hardcopy should be addressed to the Articles Editors. Unsolicited manuscripts will not be returned. Submission deadlines are May 20 for the fall issue; December 10 for the spring issue.

Editorial Policy: CJIL is committed to publishing timely and concise scholarly work. Manuscripts should be short and clear. CJIL prefers that manuscripts do not exceed the following lengths: articles, 10,500 words; essays, 3700 words; perspectives, 3200 words; and book reviews, 2800 words. We discourage superfluous and tedious citations; where a source can easily be discerned from the text, the source need not be cited. Finally, we edit articles very lightly.

Citations: CJIL uses the Chicago Journal of International Law Style Sheet which incorporates the University of Chicago Law Review Maroonbook© and The Chicago Manual of Style©. The CJIL Style Sheet is available on our website, <http://home.uchicago.edu/orgs/cjil>. Any article published in CJIL should be cited as, __ Chi J Intl L __ (20__).
