

Visitors From Britain

Returning the 1959 visit of members of the American Bar Association to Great Britain, a large number of British lawyers and their wives were guests of the ABA in Washington last August. Following the ABA meeting, almost one hundred of these visitors spent several days in Chicago. The Law School was host to the entire group at a reception in the Main Lounge.

In addition, eight British law teachers were the guests of the Law School during the same period. They included Professor Denis Browne, Dean of the Faculty of Law at the University of Liverpool, Professor J. A. Coutts, Dean of the Faculty of Law of the University of Bristol, Professor D. J. Llewellyn Davies, of the Faculty of Law at the University College of Wales, Sir Arthur Goodhart, Master of University College, Oxford, Professor Norman Marsh, Director of the Institute for the Study of International and Comparative Law, University of London, Professor O. R. Marshall, Dean of the Faculty of Law of the University of Sheffield, Robert Megarry, Q.C., Lecturer in the Inns of Court, and Professor James Montrose, Dean of the Faculty of Law, Queen's College, Belfast.

The Right Honorable Lord Parker of Waddington, Lord Chief Justice of England, who will deliver the Fifth Ernst Freund Lecture in January.

At the Law School luncheon for visiting British law teachers, left to right, Mrs. Allison Dunham, Professor Brainerd Currie, Professor D. J. Llewellyn Davies, of the University College of Wales, and Professor Allison Dunham.

Robert E. Megarry, Q.C., with Mrs. Andrew Dallstream at the reception for British lawyers. Mr. Megarry is both a practicing barrister and a teacher of law. Mrs. Dallstream's husband, who is President of the Law Alumni Association, was Co-Chairman of the Chicago Bar Association's host committee.

At right, Richard Bentley, of the Law School Visiting Committee, Co-Chairman of the Chicago Bar Association's host committee, at the Law School reception for visiting British lawyers.