RESOURCES and ACTIVITIES

THE D'ANGELO LAW LIBRARY

Occupying five floors in the central building of the Laird Bell Quadrangle, the D'Angelo Law Library combines one of the finest print collections in the country with state-of-the-art access to electronic texts and information. Its collections, numbering more than 585,000 volumes, are specially strong in foreign law. The goal of the Library is to provide students and faculty with the best possible access to all forms of legal information. The Library’s unique design—bookstacks surrounded by student carrels and faculty offices—is a physical expression of the Law School’s community of scholarship and teaching.

The D'Angelo Law Library is part of the University of Chicago Library System, incorporating the main Joseph Regenstein Library and several departmental libraries, including the John Crerar Science Library and the School of Social Service Administration Library. The staff of the D'Angelo Law Library is available to help students locate appropriate materials in the Law Library and elsewhere in the University library system. The Online Catalog for the entire library system is accessible through library terminals and from remote locations.

COMPUTER SERVICES

Computer services at the Law School are maintained and continually upgraded by the School’s Computer Services Department and the D'Angelo Law Library. These services, considered some of the best on campus, are designed to facilitate student work in all areas of legal coursework and research.

The D'Angelo Law Library provides personal computers and access to computer network services from several locations. On the second floor of the Law Library, the training room is used for teaching students to use campus network information sources, the Law School Gopher, Internet information sources, the Library’s Online catalog, and Lexis/Nexis and Westlaw/Dialog, commercial on-line legal databases. Ten additional dedicated PCs have been installed on the east side of the John P. Wilson Reading Room for accessing Lexis/Nexis and Westlaw/Dialog. All of the Macintoshes and PCs are attached to local printers, providing faculty and students with downloading and printing capabilities.

The Student Computer Lab, is located on the third floor of the D'Angelo Law Library and caters to students needing to do word processing, or wanting to use word processing and Lexis or Westlaw concurrently. The Lab is home to eight Apple Macintosh computers, eleven IBM-compatible PCs, and a number of laser printers. All of the computers are loaded with a variety of programs, including word-processing software, Lexis/Nexis, and Westlaw/Dialog. In addition, all the Macintoshes in the lab are connected to the Internet so students can access electronic mail and other services.
Most study areas in the Library are wired for connection to the Campus Network. From these areas, any student with a properly configured laptop computer will be able to access the library on-line catalog, email, the Internet, Campus Network databases, Lexis/Nexis, and Westlaw/Dialog without having to use the Student Computer Lab. The necessary connectors and software are available to students through the Library.

The D'Angelo Law Library provides students and faculty with access to several fulltext databases. Lexis/Nexis and Westlaw/Dialog are on-line databases whose contents duplicate over 100,000 volumes of United States, foreign, and international law in the Library, as well as provide access to a wide range of business, economics, social science literature, along with national and world news. Faculty and students have unlimited access from library and home terminals, along with unlimited downloading and printing capabilities. Numerous fulltext and bibliographic databases on CD-ROM are available in the reference area of the John P. Wilson Reading Room.

The D'Angelo Law Library also operates the Law School's World Wide Web server, which gives law students and professors access to a variety of legal and economic information sources on the Internet with a simple and consistent interface. Statutes, cases, foreign laws, treaties, international law, articles, working papers, catalogs, bibliographies, statistics, directories, news stories, and electronic discussions are all available through this service. Using the gopher server, the research centers at the Law School publish their research electronically to the world. The Law School gopher is linked to UCInfo, the University's campus-wide information system.

ORGANIZATIONS AND ACTIVITIES

The University of Chicago Law Review, founded in 1933, is one of the country's preeminent legal journals. Managed and edited by students, the Review publishes articles and book reviews by leading scholars along with comments written by students. In addition to participating in the editing and publication of legal scholarship, staff members have the unique opportunity to develop their own skills as writers and scholars. The Review emphasizes student works; on average, half of each issue is devoted to student comments. In recent years, about 15 percent of the students in each first-year class have been invited to join the Review on the basis of either academic performance or excellence in an annual writing competition. Students may also join the staff during their second or third years by completing a publishable comment through the topic access program.

The University of Chicago Law School Roundtable, founded in 1992, is a biannual student-edited interdisciplinary law journal. The Roundtable publishes articles and student-written comments that combine law with at least one other discipline, such as anthropology, economics, game theory, history, international relations, literature, medicine, philosophy, political theory, public policy, or theology. Additionally, each year the Roundtable organizes a symposium in which leading scholars from several fields gather to discuss a single topic. The journal then edits and publishes their papers, along with the several open articles and student-written comments. Volume 3 contains articles presented at the 1995 symposium, "Intermediate Punishments: Viable Alternatives to Prison?" This year’s symposium will address the legal and philosophical issues raised by recent scientific developments in the area of human gene mapping. Students wishing to join the Roundtable either write a proposal for an interdisciplinary comment during the summer, or participate in the Topic Access program, in which students complete a substantial interdisciplinary comment to be submitted for publication during the year. The Topic Access program is also open to graduate students in other departments of the University.

The University of Chicago Legal Forum is a student-edited journal, published annually. Each volume of the Legal Forum is devoted to a topic of current legal interest and contains articles by leading academics and practitioners, as well as student-written comments. The professional contributions to each volume are presented at an annual symposium held at the Law School. Students may join the Legal Forum either through the annual writing competition, which is held during the summer, or by developing a comment topic of their own. Members of the journal work on their own contributions, organize the symposium, and edit the articles submitted by symposium participants. Volume 1996 will be entitled "The Law of Cyberspace."

The Hinton Moot Court Competition, founded in 1954 and named for Judge Edward W. Hinton (Professor of Law, 1913–36), is open to all second- and third-year students. The competition affords all students the opportunity to further develop skills in writing and appellate advocacy. The focus of the preliminary fall round is on oral argument. After studying the briefs and record of an actual case and participating in several practice arguments with student judges, each competitor must argue both sides of the case to panels of Chicago attorneys. Twelve students advance to the semifinal round, where they work to brief and argue another case. A panel of faculty members and judges hears the semifinal arguments and selects the four best advocates. In the spring, the four finalists work in teams on yet another case. The briefs produced in the final round are printed and distributed to the Law School community. A panel of distinguished judges presides at the final argument, which is one of the highlights of the academic year. This panel selects the Hinton Moot Court champions and the Llewellyn Cup champions. The competition is conducted by semifinalists from the previous year, who constitute the Hinton Moot Court Committee, with the assistance of a faculty adviser and an alumni adviser.

The Mandel Legal Aid Association is the student organization associated with the work of the Mandel Legal Aid Clinic. The Association provides advice on the content, structure, and staffing of the clinical education program. The Mandel Clinic has a Director, Randolph N. Stone, seven full-time attorneys who are Clinical Professors or Clinical Lecturers of Law in the Law School, and a social worker who is also a field instructor at the University's School of Social Service Administration. The clinical program is described more fully elsewhere in these Announcements.

The Law Students Association is the student government organization. Its president, five representatives from each class, and an LL.M. representative are elected annually by the student body. LSA organizes extracurricular activities, funds student groups, and, through student liaisons which it selects from among the student body, communicates student opinion on academic and other matters to faculty committees. LSA also sponsors the weekly Wine Mess for students and faculty.
LSA supports a variety of student groups, including:

- the American Civil Liberties Union, a local chapter dedicated to promoting discussion of civil rights and related issues;
- Amicus, a group which provides networking opportunities for law students' spouses and significant others;
- the Asian-American Law Students Association, a local chapter of a national organization concerned with the interests of Asian-American students at law school;
- the Black Law Students Association, a local chapter of a national organization concerned with the interests of African-American students in law schools;
- the Chicago Law Foundation, a nonprofit organization providing funds for Law School students to work on public interest legal projects;
- the Christian Law Students, organized to discuss the relationship between legal education, the legal profession, and Christianity;
- the Entertainment and Sports Law Society, which promotes presentations by current practitioners in this area;
- the Environmental Law Society, organized to discuss the legal aspects of environmental issues;
- the Federalist Society, a local chapter of a national society organized to discuss political issues from conservative and libertarian perspectives;
- the Foreign Law Study Society, which organizes group trips to various countries to meet with law makers, practitioners, and scholars;
- the Bisexual, Gay, and Lesbian Law Students Association, a group that provides support and sponsors programs regarding the legal status of bisexuals, lesbians, and gay men;
- the Health Care Law Society, organized to discuss the legal aspects of medical and public health issues;
- the Hispanic Law Students, a local chapter of a national organization concerned with the interests of Hispanic students at the Law School;
- the International Law Society, organized to examine the legal systems of other countries and their relationship to the Anglo-American legal system;
- the Jewish Law Students Association, a group concerned with Jewish issues of legal interest and legal issues of Jewish interest;
- the Law School Democrats and the Law School Republicans, promoting political awareness of issues and topics on the national, state, and local level;
- Law School Films, which shows old, classic movies on Tuesday, Friday, and Saturday nights;
- Law School Objectivists, a group dedicated to Randian principles;
- Law School Trivia, an annual trivia tournament;
- the Law Women's Caucus, committed to understanding and improving the role of women in law school, the legal profession, and society;
- Neighbors, a volunteer community service organization;
- the Phoenix, the Law School student newspaper;
- Scales of Justice, an a cappella singing group;
- Street Law and Horizons, organizations that send law students to local high schools to teach legal issues;
the Law School Musical; and Volunteer Income Tax Assistance, a volunteer student program that prepares annual income tax returns for indigent Chicago residents.
