SYMPOSIUM: MANAGEMENT AND CONTROL OF THE MODERN BUSINESS CORPORATION

FEBRUARY 8–9, 2002

It is now widely recognized that corporate governance has important effects on the economy and society. This Symposium brings together leading scholars of corporate law to examine basic issues in the governance of large, publicly traded companies. It seeks to contribute to understanding the questions and challenges confronting the future study of corporate governance.

The University of Chicago Law Review would like to thank all those who participated in the Symposium, especially Professors Lucian Bebchuk and Lisa Bernstein, who served as faculty organizers and advisers. The Law Review would also like to thank The University of Chicago Law School, the John M. Olin Program in Law and Economics at The University of Chicago Law School, and the John M. Olin Foundation for Law, Economics, and Business at Harvard Law School for their financial support. Finally, the Law Review thanks Dawn Matthews for her assistance in coordinating the Symposium.
