National Scholarships

The new National Scholarship program for The Law School is off to a full start in its first year. Inaugurated last year through the support of the University, the program aims eventually to bring scholarship students to The Law School each year from twenty leading liberal arts colleges throughout the nation.

Shown above at lunch with Professor Sheldon Tefft are the first-year scholarship recipients (clockwise): Thomas W. Gibbs, Evanston, Illinois, from Amherst; Alan Brodie, Portland, Oregon, from Reed; Arthur Content, Stamford, Connecticut, from Hamilton; Joseph Fitch, Wilmette, Illinois, from Ripon; William Jochem, Peoria, Illinois, from Knox; George Lundin, Wilmette, Illinois, from Carleton; William Soulou, Waterloo, Iowa, from Carleton; Jack Schultz, Dixon, Illinois, from Beloit; Mr. Tefft; William V. Morgan, Jr., Greencastle, Indiana, from De Pauw University; Robert M. Brown, Hempstead, New York, from Antioch College; Lawrence P. Hochberg, Providence, Rhode Island, from Brown University; Francis D. Logan, Charlo, Montana, from Chicago; Eva S. Stanton, Atlanta, Georgia, from Oberlin; W. Holmes Brown, Huntington, West Virginia, from Swarthmore; Robert E. Nagle, Mount Vernon, New York, from Wesleyan University; Paul N. Wenzer, Jr., West Hartford, Connecticut, from Dartmouth.

Mr. Tefft has recently completed a circuit trip of the eastern seaboard to meet with prospective law students and launch the scholarship program for 1952-53. In addition to the schools already represented, Mr. Tefft visited Princeton University, Colgate University, Trinity College, and Williams College and met with students at Harvard and Yale who are interested in the study of law.

Bringing first-rate students to The Law School and widening the geographic representation among the student body is of prime importance in the continued growth and development of the School. Alumni can be helpful in referring interested students to their alma mater and calling to the attention of the School individual students and institutions in their localities who could be interested in Chicago.

Student Leaders

EDWIN P. WILEY, Editor-in-Chief of The University of Chicago Law Review, graduated with honors from The College of the University where he was a leader in undergraduate life. Ted was born in Hammond, Indiana. While in the College he held office in Student Government and was Captain of the University's Big Ten Championship Debate Team. Ted recently won the Nathan Burkan Award for his essay, "Copyrights and TV—a New Use for the Multiple Performance Theory."

BERNARD WEISBERG, this year's Managing Editor of The Law Review, is Kosmerl Fellow for 1951-52. A native of Columbus, Ohio, Bernard attended Ohio State University and graduated from The College of the University of Chicago with honors. A former Medical Corps Sergeant, Bernard is kept busy these days as the number one student in the Senior Class.

MERRILL FREED is also an Ohioan who came to The College of the University of Chicago from Springfield. A Committee Chairman in Student Government in his College days, Merrill was also former Regional Chairman of the National Student Association. He is the first recipient of the scholarship recently endowed by the Class of 1915. Among this year's competitors for The Law Review, Merrill is the number one man in the Second Year Class.

Placement

The Placement Office of The University of Chicago Law School is eager to serve alumni, law firms, corporations, agencies, and recent and prospective graduates of the School. Directed by Mr. Sims Carter, Dean of Students, the office screens all job applicants and will refer to your office men and women having the qualities you seek in a young lawyer.

The office can do its best job if it knows early of your needs. Mr. Carter will be happy to arrange conferences and interviews at the School or in your office. Students are graduated in June, September, December, and March.
